This young gallery has a knack for putting together group shows of new and established photographers, and the current one is as refreshingly straightforward and spare as its title. It's hard to beat Stephen Shore's 1977 shot of a nearly empty stretch of Miami Beach shoreline, but Mark Wyse's picture of a solitary surfer in a mass of foaming water holds its own nicely. So does work by Shannon Ebner, David Hilliard, Katie Murray, and Pete Mauney, whose tiny video piece provides the show's soundtrack. ALETTI
